

Interlocutory applications to the court: Knowing the rules and getting them right!

Thursday, 4 June 2020

12:00 - 13:00

At a time when most applications are going to be heard remotely, it is more important than ever that litigators know, and comply with, the rules governing making applications to court.

This webinar looks at:

- The Rules and Practice Directions in detail so you can be sure you are complying
- Case law and judicial observations in relation to the making of applications
- The practical steps you can take
- The costs of interlocutory applications and how to make sure you can recover appropriate costs

We will then look at the law and practice in relation to two particular types of application:

Prospective applications for extensions of time

- Making sure that this is a prospective application and staying away from Denton
- The law as to prospective applications

Interim payments

- The mandatory requirements when making an application for an interim payment
- The case law
- Maximising your prospects of success

Gordon Exall was called to the Bar in 1991 having originally qualified and practised as a solicitor. He practices from Kings Chambers.

He works almost wholly in the area of personal injury litigation and in the law relating to civil procedure, limitation and costs. He has a particular interest in issues relating to damages, evidence and the drafting of special damages schedules.

Gordon is a former executive committee member of APIL and has lectured widely for APIL and CPIL on personal injury and procedure topics. Gordon is the author of written Personal Injury Practice Notes (Cavendish); The APIL Guide to Fatal Accidents; the 11th edition of Munkman on Damages for Personal Injury Death, and Periodical Payments the New Law. He also writes the section on limitation for the APIL loose-leaf.

Gordon has appeared in several of the leading cases relating to procedure, service of the claim form and the assessment of damages.

Gordon writes the "Civil Litigation Brief", one of the most widely read sites on litigation, evidence and procedure.

In his spare time Gordon plays guitar and mandolin in a rock band (which has performed at APIL conferences). He has four children and lives in York.
