

Periodical payments and provisional damages:

Law, practice and the key cases

Friday, 17 July

12:00 - 13:00

Periodical payments and provisional damages have been a part of the legal landscape for some time now.

A knowledge of the law, procedure and key cases is essential to any practitioner involved in personal injury litigation in the multi-track.

This webinar looks at these two areas in detail and those cases where the award of damages is not "final", reviewing the law, procedure and practical application of periodical payments and provisional damages.

The webinar will cover:

The law relating to periodical payments
Procedure and periodical payments
Ensuring security for the claimant - does Brexit make a difference?
Periodical payments in practice
Key cases

Provisional damages:

Is a claimant under an obligation to claim provisional damages?
When is a claim for provisional damages appropriate?
The conditions for the making of a provisional damages award
The consequences of a provisional award
Making a claim for provisional damages
The key cases

Gordon Exall was called to the Bar in 1991 having originally qualified and practised as a solicitor. He practices from Kings Chambers.

He works almost wholly in the area of personal injury litigation and in the law relating to civil procedure, limitation and costs. He has a particular interest in issues relating to damages, evidence and the drafting of special damages schedules.

Gordon is a former executive committee member of APIL and has lectured widely for APIL and CPIL on personal injury and procedure topics. Gordon is the author of written Personal Injury Practice Notes (Cavendish); The APIL Guide to Fatal Accidents (4th edition); the 14th edition of Munkman and Exall on Damages, and Periodical Payments the New Law. He also writes the section on limitation for the APIL loose-leaf.

Gordon has appeared in several of the leading cases relating to procedure, service of the claim form and the assessment of damages.

Gordon writes the "Civil Litigation Brief", one of the most widely read sites on litigation, evidence and procedure.

In his spare time Gordon plays guitar and mandolin in a rock band (which has performed at APIL conferences). He has four children and lives in York.
