We are delighted to welcome back Neil Johnson to APIL, to present this practical and interactive, one day course on public speaking.

As well as focusing on the practical elements of public speaking, this in-person event will be underpinned with confidence building, dealing with nerves and will provide strategies for the participants to take away.

Neil uses many different methods including neuro linguistic programming and drama techniques.

Topics will include:

- Warm up – physical and vocal exercises
- Breathing & relaxation
- Articulation
- Listening
- Introduction to the art of Communication

- "The Voice" - to include work on:
- Centering and focus
- Pace, Pause and Projection
- The importance of Body Language

- Breaking down the communication process including:
- The speaker & motivation
- The audience
- Feedback (verbal and non-verbal and how to respond to it)
- Going back to breathing

- The message/content
- Different means of communication

- Feedback and summary of the day

"Neil is very polite and approachable. It was a privilege to learn with him today."

Speaker details:

Neil spent ten years working as an Actor in Theatre and Television, following three years training at Guildford School of Acting, and has worked as a producer/consultant in the conference and communications industry since 1994.

As a full-time project manager for the BBC and then the Tate Gallery Neil managed budgets in excess of £3m working on Education and Creatively projects for Young People all around the UK.

Neil has produced numerous conferences and shows, either directly or in association with production companies, for clients ranging from various divisions of BT including the Chief executives' PCG Roadshow through to American Express, Balfour Beatty, Lego, Lever Brothers and General Motors. He also produced the American Comedienne, Joan Rivers, UK shows in Edinburgh, London and on a UK wide tour.
