

THREE NEW FACES WELCOMED ONTO NATIONAL LEGAL COMMITTEE

10 April 2008

Three industry leaders will take their places on the Association of Personal Injury Lawyers' executive committee at its annual conference today (10 April).

Cenric Clement-Evans is partner at South Wales law firm Hugh James. He heads the firm's accidents at work and industrial disease groups, and specialises in occupational health cases.

Also joining the committee is Jonathon Wheeler of Islington law firm Bolt Burdon Kemp. He is head of the firm's personal injury group and specialises in claims for victims of child abuse.

Stephen Gray, partner at Gray Magee will be representing Northern Ireland on the committee.

Returning to the executive committee for another term are Fred Tyler of Balfour & Manson LLP in Edinburgh, Neil Sugarman of GLP solicitors in Bury, and Mark Turbull of Thompsons solicitors in Liverpool.
