COLLEGE OF PERSONAL INJURY LAW ANNOUNCES SENIOR FELLOW APPOINTMENT

A leading clinical negligence lawyer has been appointed senior fellow of the College of Personal Injury Law (CPIL).

Simon John, senior partner at East Anglia firm Cunningham John, has earned CPIL's highest accolade through his outstanding dedication and contribution to personal injury law over the years.

Denise Kitchener, CPIL's chief executive, said she was delighted that Simon's achievements had been recognised by CPIL's independent assessment panel.

"The calibre of those appointed as senior fellows matches CPIL's reputation for quality," she said. "We are delighted that Simon's name is being added to an already distinguished list of senior fellows."

The CPIL assessment panel meets annually to assess the applications and, provided the senior fellows maintain their commitment to undertake 50 hours of CPD training over five years, as both students and trainers, the title is retained for life.
