

THINK REHAB!

APIL members are dedicated to achieving the best possible outcomes for their clients. The association's aim is for all members to recognise that this usually means seeking rehabilitation as well as financial compensation.

To coincide with APIL's 25th anniversary, a third edition of the association's guide to rehabilitation has been published to help members put injured people back on the road to recovery as soon as possible. The guide is available on the new rehabilitation page of the APIL website.

In the meantime, here are a few thoughts members might want to bear in mind:

Think Rehab! should be the stock-in-trade of APIL members.

Helping people back on the road to recovery is as important as securing financial security.

In almost every case - even lower value cases - rehab can make a significant contribution to putting an injured person's life back on track.

Narrowing the issues through dialogue and collaboration between lawyers and insurers can be cost effective and promote early recovery.

Know the principles of rehab - use the APIL guide!

Returning to a sense of normality is often the most important consideration for injured people.

Early rehab can be a key factor in fulfilling the purpose of the law: to restore the injured person to where he would have been, but for the injury, as far as possible.

Holistic approaches to litigation, such as rehab, help people recover psychologically and emotionally, as well as physically.

APIL accreditation can help to demonstrate knowledge and experience of rehabilitation to prospective clients.

Be open to rehab: in a highly competitive market, provision of rehab gives a solicitor an edge.

THINK REHAB!

"I was able to get my life back on track because my solicitor knew about rehab."

"Rehab helped me get back to work quickly."

Dialogue & collaboration between lawyers and insurers can be cost effective.
