

Claims for medical expenses, care and work around the home

Thursday, 23 July 2020

12:00 - 13:00

This webinar looks at the law and practice relating to the costs of medical treatment, care and loss of ability to do work around the home.

It covers the difficulties quantifying care in non-severe cases where the claim is important but the court may not permit the use of expert evidence.

Popular speaker Gordon Exall will cover:

- The central importance of care claims
- Medical and hospital expenses - does a claimant have to use the NHS?
- What is "care"?
- Quantifying care without the help of an expert
- Care in minor and non-severe cases
- Claims for household assistance - does the law treat them differently?
- Can a claim be made for inability to act as a carer?
- Aids and appliances

In addition the webinar will look at the issue of care in severe cases and look at recent decisions where care awards have been made in severe and catastrophic cases

Gordon Exall was called to the Bar in 1991 having originally qualified and practised as a solicitor. He practices from Kings Chambers.

He works almost wholly in the area of personal injury litigation and in the law relating to civil procedure, limitation and costs. He has a particular interest in issues relating to damages, evidence and the drafting of special damages schedules.

Gordon is a former executive committee member of APIL and has lectured widely for APIL and CPIL on personal injury and procedure topics. Gordon is the author of written Personal Injury Practice Notes (Cavendish); The APIL Guide to Fatal Accidents (4th edition); the 14th edition of Munkman and Exall on Damages, and Periodical Payments the New Law. He also writes the section on limitation for the APIL loose-leaf.

Gordon has appeared in several of the leading cases relating to procedure, service of the claim form and the assessment of damages.

Gordon writes the "Civil Litigation Brief", one of the most widely read sites on litigation, evidence and procedure.

In his spare time Gordon plays guitar and mandolin in a rock band (which has performed at APIL conferences). He has four children and lives in York.
