

Interim payments for damages and costs: Law, practice and procedure

Thursday, 30 September 2021
12:00 - 13:00

This webinar looks at the law, practice and procedure in relation to interim payment applications.

It deals with interim payments for damages and payments on account of costs and will cover:

- The rules and Practice Direction in detail so you can be sure you are complying
- Case law and judicial observations in relation to the making of applications
- The practical steps you can take to avoid problems
- The costs of interim payment applications and how to make sure you can recover appropriate costs
- The mandatory requirements when making an application for an interim payment
- Knowing the case law and making sure your evidence assists the judge
- Maximising your prospects of success
- The rules for applying, and obtaining, interim payments on account of costs

Gordon Exall was called to the Bar in 1991 having originally qualified and practised as a solicitor. He practices from Kings Chambers.

He works almost wholly in the area of personal injury litigation and in the law relating to civil procedure, limitation and costs. He has a particular interest in issues relating to damages, evidence and the drafting of special damages schedules.

Gordon is a former executive committee member of APIL and has lectured widely for APIL and CPIL on personal injury and procedure topics. Gordon is the author of written Personal Injury Practice Notes (Cavendish); The APIL Guide to Fatal Accidents (4th edition); the 14th edition of Munkman and Exall on Damages, and Periodical Payments the New Law. He also writes the section on limitation for the APIL loose-leaf.

Gordon has appeared in several of the leading cases relating to procedure, service of the claim form and the assessment of damages.

Gordon writes the "Civil Litigation Brief", one of the most widely read sites on litigation, evidence and procedure.

In his spare time Gordon plays guitar and mandolin in a rock band (which has performed at APIL conferences). He has four children and lives in York.
